

Source: Building America's Future (www.InvestInInfrastructure.org)

For Immediate Release: February 9, 2009

BAF Contact: Laura Braden, 916-444-1380, lbraden@mercuryllc.com

Building America's Future Launches Enhanced Website

Infrastructure coalition also announces Facebook, YouTube profiles

Washington, DC – Today, Building America's Future, a bipartisan and national infrastructure coalition comprised of state and locally elected officials, announced significant upgrades and improvements to its website – www.InvestInInfrastructure.org. New features include an interactive map of coalition members, a comprehensive newsroom that daily highlights the most important infrastructure news, and the ability to leave comments on all BAF news releases.

"Today more people get their news from the Internet than they do from newspapers, so it's essential to have a website that is accessible, informative and concise," said Polly Trottenberg, executive director of Building America's Future. "It's also why we support the Obama Administration's efforts to upgrade Internet and broadband accessibility across the country."

BAF can also be found on Facebook (<http://www.facebook.com/group.php?gid=45390619022>) or by searching "Building America's Future") and YouTube (www.youtube.com/BAFInfrastructure).

"Our new website will make it even easier for the public to learn about our nation's crumbling infrastructure and our efforts to bring about real reform and smart investment. Social networking sites like Facebook enable us to increase awareness, interact with supporters in real time and provide an easy outlet for them to voice their opinions," added Trottenberg.

###